

Claims made by criminals that languages are nonsensical or that devices do not function as portrayed or store any information after frequently made in support of their own crimes or to facilitate them initially by portraying laws and culture as not existing in any given area referenced that way and / or portray an area as a private "game park" where any present could be claimed to be trespassing, and not have any inherent rights of citizenship, or to be entirely artificial or non-sentient parts of that supposed game's machinery or components.